The shorter hours reported in summer hotels may possibly be due to a greater difficulty in securing accurate information regarding hours in these establishments, and may also be partly accounted for by the fact that in summer hotels meals are served over a shorter range of hours, and employees are given more time off in the afternoon. Age and Length of Experience. --Summer hotel workers are considerably younger and more inexperienced than those employed in other hotels. As shown by Table 10, over onehalf (54. 0 per cent.) of the summer workers were under twenty-five years of age, whereas only one-fourth (26. 5 per cent.) of those in other hotels were under this age. A difference is also...
